Press Release

finding an investor is going well. Given how the company's financial figures in relation to its operations have steadied since the application for insolvency was filed and the very stable order situation, there is no need to make hasty decisions during the process of finding an investor. We want to achieve a robust, permanent restructuring and follow-up solution that will also meet the key objective in the proceedings of ensuring the best possible satisfaction of creditors. Therefore, we would also welcome enquiries from other interested parties. The employees, who were recently informed about the latest developments at a staff meeting, remain highly motivated and are pulling together with us. I am therefore optimistic that we will achieve the best possible solution for both the employees and the creditors." In addition to insolvency administrator Mr Meyer, the team also includes attorney Mr Christoph Chrobok and business lawyer Mr Tim Austmeyer, among others.

The origins and foundations of Steinkamp GmbH & Co. KG, a family business specialising in tools and moulds, contract and prototype manufacturing, and series production, date back to 1970, when the company was established by the father of current managing partner Mr Lars Steinkamp.
